Conference

On the week-end of 9th November World University Service held its annual conference in Brighton at which the University was represented by Dr. D. Jones and Miss Vera Kewes. Apart from general organisational matters and reports on its national and international activities (part of the funds collected in Britain are put towards World University Service's international work) two important resolutions were passed:

(a) to give support to the South African Committee for Higher Education which tries to provide unrestricted education for coloured and negro South Africans.

(b) to provide financial aid for foreign students who find themselves in need in this country.

These are important extensions of the work of World University Service which thinks of itself as a service especially in times of emergency.

What is World University Service?

World University Service is pledged to help solve all student and staff problems. It aims to fight against all restrictions to higher education whether they be social, political, economic or physical. It deserves support in its aims because it pioneers in fields where no other organisation has yet tried to do anything. Its activities are necessarily limited by resources but they are very courageous.

Students all over the world have problems. In England there is a shortage of places in all colleges of higher education, problems of accommodation, mental health, loneliness, curricula. In many parts of Africa, Asia and South America the need is for staff, equipment, books; in fact for all the requisites of a university as we know it.

Anyone interested in helping World University Service's aims or would like more information should contact Dr. Ruth Rogers, Dr. Jones or Vera Kewes.
