VC TO QUIT

Professor Asa Briggs announced to the University Council on March 21 that he is to resign the Vice-Chancellorship from September 1, 1975. He is to return to his old college, Worcester College, Oxford, as Provost in succession to Lord Franks.

He said his decision, which he had foreseen at Senate earlier in the week, had been a difficult one to make. He had come to the conclusion at the beginning of this academic year that a period of nine or ten years as Vice-Chancellor was long enough.

"I am very anxious indeed to spend more time writing, to undertake more public jobs and to take a greater part in international activities", he told Council. It was only in the previous two days that he had decided to accept the invitation from Worcester College.

The Vice-Chancellor pointed out that he was announcing his departure almost nine years to the day since the first Vice-Chancellor, Lord Fulton, informed the Council meeting in March 1966 that he was leaving the University.

Professor Briggs is to keep the house in Lewes which he and his wife bought three years ago. "I will not lose the connections with Sussex which mean so much to me," he said.

"I have always found that when this University is being imaginative and constructive it really is a marvellous university," he said. Over the years he had had nothing but very good relations with students.

The Vice-Chancellor explained that his resignation had nothing whatsoever to do with the decision - which he believed to be wrong - to merge Brighton College of Education with the Polytechnic.

"I shall always regard the University of Sussex as my University", the Vice-Chancellor said in concluding his statement to Council.

Sir Sydney Caffyn, Chairman of Council, said he had received the notice of resignation with both regret and a deep sense of the loss that would result to the University.

The appointment of the new Vice-Chancellor is to follow the precedent adopted by the University in March 1966. A joint committee of the Council and Senate will be responsible for bringing forward a nomination for the approval of the Council and Senate.

The joint committee will consist of five members appointed by the Council and five members appointed by the Senate, with the Chairman of Council as chairman of the Committee.

The Council members will be: The Pro-Chancellor (Dr. R. Attenborough), The Treasurer (Mr. R. G. Edwades Jones), The Vice-Chairman of Council (Dr. L. Farrer-Brown), Sir Roger Stevens and Mr. G. R. Potter.

GUEST NIGHT DINNER

Members of faculty are reminded that reply slips from those wishing to attend the dinner on Friday, May 23, 1975 should be returned as soon as possible to Mr. P. A. Tear, Room 316, Sussex House.

Dr. J. F. NIXON

A Corday Morgan Prize has been awarded by the Chemical Society to Dr. J. F. Nixon, Lecturer in the School of Molecular Sciences, for meritorious contribution to experimental inorganic chemistry.

IS YOUR CALL REALLY NECESSARY?

As from Monday 28 April all telephone charges have been increased by at least 20%. The highest charges are for non-local calls made between 9.00am and 1.00pm. To save costs your cooperation is essential. Please make non-local calls after 1.00pm wherever possible.

HONORARY DEGREES

A bishop, a ballet dancer and a retired film producer are among those who will receive honorary degrees at the Graduation Ceremony on July 15.

In all, five honorary degrees will be conferred at the Ceremony in the Dome.

The full list, approved by Senate and Council last month, is:

HonDLitt:
Sir Michael Balfon, retired film producer living in Sussex.
Dr. F. W. H. Briault, Education Officer, Inner London Education Authority.
Rt. Rev. R. A. Reeves, formerly Bishop of Johannesburg and President of the Anti-Apartheid Movement.
Dame Ninette de Valois, Governor of the Royal Ballet.

HonDSc:
Professor Jacques Heyman, Professor of Engineering, University of Cambridge.
Continuing the Bulletin's series on the Arts Centre, Robert Cahn, Chairman of the Visual Arts Directorate, describes what has been happening in the Gallery and elsewhere:

As part of the reorganisation of the Arts Centre two years ago, an organiser for the visual arts was appointed for the first time. Anne Elliott pioneered this post and when she left to join the British Council, she was followed by Hilary Lane. The presence of a full-time professional in the Arts Centre means that a much greater variety of exhibitions is now feasible, as well as a more vigorous programme of artistic activities involving students.

During the past two years, exhibitions have been divided between conventional shows of paintings, sculptures, craft and textiles, many being one-man shows; exhibitions to a theme, borrowed from other institutions such as the Victoria and Albert Museum; and, just once, a historical exhibition of original art organised by the University itself.

Most of the shows have been in the Gardner Art Gallery, but a few have been organised elsewhere, especially in the AFRAS Common Room where a series of African and Asian artists have exhibited. Lately, Hilary Lane has begun combining two shows at one time, one in the Gallery and the other along the staircase leading to the theatre, and this has been an effective way of developing variety among exhibits.

The most important exhibition to date has been "British Drawings 1900-1930," held in the Gallery in June 1974. This exhibition was important for three distinct reasons: it brought together original creations of historical significance; it was jointly organised by the visual arts organiser and by a member of academic faculty, who also prepared a full catalogue of the exhibits with scholarly notes on the artists; and it was specifically linked to an existing academic course ("Art and Letters in England, 1900-1950").

This exhibition was expensive to mount, expensive to guard and expensive in time and effort, but eminently worthwhile; and provided faculty will come forward with suggestions and collaboration, it will be followed by further historical exhibitions of original work.

During the past two years there have also been a number of lectures sponsored by the Arts Deans and linked to thematic exhibitions (in 1974 it was the Greater London Council's exhibition of public housing in London; in 1975, the exhibition held jointly with Brighton Polytechnic on Walter Gropius). These lectures, again, linked the shows with aspects of the University's academic programme.

The needs and interests of the local community are specifically served by such events as the Sussex County Arts Club show and by various shows of "participatory art" aimed at local schoolchildren. The Christmas craft show has become an annual event, and next Christmas it will be combined with an unusual exhibition of nineteenth-century steam engine models which will interest engineers, historians and schoolchildren alike.

A subcommittee of the Visual Arts Directorate is responsible for spending the modest sums available (from non-UGC sources) for acquisition of paintings and sculptures for the University's permanent collection. Those who wish for paintings to adorn particular bare walls should talk to Hilary Lane. Hilary is also hard at work refurbishing the University's Art Loan Collection which has been in abeyance for the last two years.

There has been a most welcome revival of student activity in creative art, through the agency of the Art Society which is at present most vigorous. There are regular classes in Life Drawing, Pottery and Wood Engraving, and the Studio is often alive with artistic endeavour until late hours.

The successive Artists in Residence have established some contact with student artists, but this scheme has not yet by any means fulfilled its potential; the remoteness of the AFRAS studio at the back of the Arts Centre has added to the natural difficulty of establishing contact in the first place.

However, we shall persist with the scheme, and hope that the Art Society will do everything possible to help it work effectively. It may be that the appointment of a Theatre Design Fellow will prove to be the most effective way of bringing creative artists into close contact with the students who visit the Arts Centre.

MEETING HOUSE SERVICE TO BE TELEVISED

A special Ascension Day Service in the Meeting House on Thursday, May 8, is to be transmitted on BBC Television on the morning of Sunday, May 11, as part of the International Christian Television Festival.

Dame Barbara Ward will be the preacher and members of the University who wish to attend should be seated by 5.45pm.

MARTIN WIGHT MEMORIAL LECTURE

The series of annual Martin Wight Memorial lectures was launched at Sussex last Wednesday when Professor Herbert Butterfield spoke on "Raison d'Etat: the Relations between Government and Morality".

Three hundred people, including members of Professor Wight's family and many of his former colleagues, filled the Molecular Sciences Lecture Theatre for the occasion. They heard the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Arts and Social Studies), Professor R.P.C. Mutter, who chaired the lecture, speak of the deep sense of loss felt by all those who had known Professor Wight.

Martin Wight, Professor of History and first Dean of the School of European Studies, was one of the "founding fathers" of the University of Sussex. He died in July 1972.

The annual lecture in his memory will be given in rotation at Sussex, the London School of Economics and Chatham House, the three institutions with which he was most closely associated.
COUNCIL

The Students' Union Capitation Fee for 1975-76 will be £21.50. Council agreed at its last meeting on March 21. In recommending this figure, the Council Review Panel had taken into account the accelerated rate of inflation in 1974-75 and the difficulties caused by the delay in the U.G.C.'s announcement of the level of compensation for rises in University costs.

The 1976 review should take account of this year's level of supplementation for inflation and should consider the effect of any slackening in inflationary costs in 1975-76, Council agreed.

Vacation grants

Council agreed that vacation grants to undergraduates should be increased from March 22, 1975 to coincide with those paid by the Department of Education and Science;

Term time rate (per day)

| Full rate | £1.90 |
| Home based | £1.00 |

Vacation rate (per day)

| Full rate | £1.60 |
| Home based | £1.00 |

Car allowances

Mileage allowances should in future be tied to the local government rate for a 1200-1450 cc car rounded to the nearest 5p. Council decided.

The following rates were fixed, to apply from January 1, 1975:

- Car mileage allowance: 11.0p per mile (instead of 7½p)
- Lump sum allowance: £159 p.a. (instead of £150 p.a.) with a mileage rate of 6p (instead of 3.75p)
- Motor cycle allowance: 2.0p (instead of 1½p) (University rate)

Travel and subsistence allowances

The following revised rates for subsistence allowances apply from April 1, 1975:

- Maximum subsistence (a) for absence of:
  - (i) 4 - 8 hours £1.25 (instead of £1.00)
  - (ii) 8 - 12 hours £2.50 (instead of £2.00)
  - (iii) 12 - 16 hours £3.25 (instead of £2.50)
  - (iv) over 16 hours £3.75 (instead of £3.00)

- (b) for absence overnight:
  - London £10.00 (instead of £8.00)
  - Elsewhere in UK £9.00 (instead of £7.00)

- (c) overseas (per day):
  - Europe £12.50 (instead of £10.00)
  - N. America £15.00 (instead of £12.50)

BULLETIN and DIARY OF EVENTS

The INFORMATION OFFICE hopes that the BULLETIN will appear every second Tuesday this term. We plan to produce the DIARY OF EVENTS every Thursday.

We would welcome items for both these publications. Anyone with news items, contributions, information or anything else they would like to see appear in the BULLETIN, should contact JENNIFER PAYNE, Information Office, Sussex House. (Extension 05-123)

The DIARY OF EVENTS will run from Friday to Thursday each week. Items should reach VERA McPHERSON (05-116) or SUE FRASER (05-224) in the Information Office, Sussex House, by not later than the Monday afternoon prior to publication.

SECOND AND THIRD YEAR POSTGRADUATES

Are you interested in earning some extra cash?

Second and third year postgraduates can earn £1.10 per hour by guiding parties of visitors around the campus.

If you are interested, get your name added to the Register of Guides kept by the Information Office. Contact Sue Fraser, Information Office, Sussex House (Ext 05 - 244).

FACILITIES FOR PERSONAL GROWTH IN THE SMALL GROUP

This term there will be a Growth Group on Wednesday evenings and a number of weekend or part-weekend Marathon Encounter Groups.

The models used will include Gestalt, Transactional Analysis, and Bio-Energetics.

Those interested in one or more of these resources can obtain further information from Geoffrey Whittfield, The Meeting House. (Ext. 09,413)

PHOTOGRAPHER AT THE GARDNER CENTRE

A photographic record of the life of the University and its surroundings is to be made by Peter Drahon, Artist-in-Residence this term.

Mr. Drahon is sponsored by the Scottish Arts Council. Some of his photographs are on display in the foyer at the Gardner Centre.

SLIM FOR VIETNAM

A sponsored slim campaign to raise funds for the Red Cross appeal for the Vietnam War Orphans is being organised by Elizabeth Stewart and Joan Robson.

If you are anxious to lose weight, why not find people to sponsor you, and help in a very worthy cause? The organisers promise that your starting weight will be kept strictly secret and only the weight loss will be recorded on the sponsor forms.

Come along to the Applied Sciences School Office, Room 1B3 between 1pm and 2pm any Wednesday or Friday to be weighed in. Or telephone Elizabeth Stewart (06-272) or Joan Robson (06-267) for further details. There is an enrolment fee of 10p.

The campaign will run throughout the nine weeks of the Summer Term and is open to all weight watchers.
THE FINANCING OF THE UNIVERSITY SYSTEM

The mid-quinquennial review should be more concerned with academic faculty logistics and staff-student ratios than with student numbers, the Vice-Chancellor said at a University discussion on "The Financing of the University system" on March 19.

In some subjects the staff-student ratio had improved in recent years, partly because declining student numbers had not been matched by resignations which would release posts for growing subjects, the Vice-Chancellor said.

He warned that it might be necessary to look at implications of the University's devolved financial structure. Though a deficit might appear on the University's budget, individual units might increase their reserves which could effectively be confiscated by the University Grants Committee in the next quinquennium.

The quinquennial system of finance

The Vice-Chancellor outlined the quinquennial system of government finance for universities. The system allowed five-year planning but made no sense if a high level of inflation without full supplementation reduced the real value of the announced grants, he said.

Before the present quinquennium the Treasury had agreed that it would automatically give at least 50 per cent supplementation for increased costs unless exceptional circumstances arose.

Such 'exceptional circumstances' had, in the Government's view, arisen, and supplementation in respect of 1974's rise in prices was withheld. The Government had later relented, but the additional grant for 1974-75 was still less than half the increased costs.

The 1977-82 quinquennium

The delayed discussion of the 1975-77 recurrent grant, which the UGC had been expected to announce last autumn, would now merge into preparation of the University's submission for the 1977-82 quinquennium, the Vice-Chancellor said.

Planning for the next quinquennium would bring student numbers back into the reckoning, he added.

SPORT

STAFF SOCCER CLUB REPORT

The close of the 1974/75 season marks the end of an era. Not only has the club lost the services of its founder and captain, Mike Banks, it has also narrowly failed to continue the sequence of medal winning honours gained over the five previous seasons.

But every player has gained a good deal of enjoyment from the activities both on and off the field.

The management has not failed to utilise the wealth of experience and character within the squad. At least 20 players have performed during the season. A delicate amalgam of youthful exuberance and mature application has given the team a unique personality!

With these qualities and a little more consistency the honours lists should once again include the club's name in 1976. T.C.M. Wheeler.

WHEELCLAMPERS AND CARTOWERS

Have you been parking your car where it shouldn't be? If so, you had better mend your ways or you may be one of the first victims of the Wheelclampers and Cartowers.

As from the end of May certain sections of the roads on the University campus will be marked with yellow lines and No Waiting signs.

A special squad will swoop on any cars parked in these restricted areas and fix clamps to their wheels, immobilising them.

This is in line with the University policy of providing adequate access for ambulances, fire appliances and loading and unloading to buildings.

Prior to wheel-clamping, warning notices will be placed for a short period under windscreen-wipers.

----------------------

RE-ORGANISATION OF THE BURSAR'S AREA

From April 1 changes have been introduced in the organisation of the Bursar's Area. The aim is to provide clearer lines of responsibility for the day-to-day management of the University campus and other properties, including their maintenance, security, and alteration other than of a major kind.

Under the new arrangements, the Area is comprised of:

The Development Office, under the Deputy Bursar and Architect and Engineer (Mr. J.A. Thomas)

The Estates and Maintenance Office, under the Deputy Bursar and Estates Manager (Mr. L.R.H. Taylor)

The Supplies and Printing Office, under the Supplies Officer and Printing Manager (Mr. R.D. Morris)

Both Deputy Bursars and the Supplies Officer are located in Sussex House, together with the Bursar, the Development Office, and supporting staff.

Mr. R.E. Bailey, Assistant Estates Manager (Engineering) and Mr. H.T.V. Church, Assistant Estates Manager (Administration) have moved offices from Sussex House to Estates and Maintenance Building.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Arrangements have been made for the following memorial services to be held in the Meeting House Chapel;

Monday, May 5 at 5.00pm.; Robin Lee, Arts Postgraduate student and part-time tutor.

Wednesday, May 7 at 1.30pm.; Mr. R.O. Silvester, formerly of the Finance Office.

UNIVERSITY VISITORS

Mr. D.C. Chaston, Senior Lecturer in Education, from Australia, will be visiting Dr. M. Erat, Centre for Educational Technology, on Friday, May 2.

Professor N.J. Nickson, Dean of the Faculty of Music, University of Queensland, will be meeting Professor Mitchell and Dr. Boyd on Monday, May 5.

Professors S.L. Malhotra and Rama Rao, from Banaras Hindu University, India, will be visiting Professor Cahn and members of Applied Sciences on Monday, May 12.
Higher Education in the Brighton Area

The Vice-Chancellor told Senate on March 19 that the University should continue to seek co-operation with other institutions of higher education in Sussex, despite the setback of the Government's fundamentally mistaken decision to merge Brighton College of Education with the Polytechnic.

He believed the decision was against the best interests of higher education in the local area, and it was also contrary to the recorded views of the University, the College itself, and the professional and student associations concerned with the future of the College.

He regretted, too, that the tone of the letter from the Department of Education and Science to the local authority, communicating the decision, was discordant with the tone of the Minister of State's visit to Brighton. The content of the letter seemed to take little account of much of the discussion which had taken place while Lord Crowther-Hunt was in Brighton.

The Pro-Vice-Chancellor, Professor M.W. Thompson, added that he shared the Vice-Chancellor's concerns but he hoped that the University would now do its utmost despite those concerns to support the Polytechnic in making the merger an academic success.

The hope that future working relationships between all parties should be constructive was expressed by the Chief Executive of East Sussex County Council and by the Chairman of its Education Committee at the Council meeting later in the week.

They welcomed the proposal mentioned in the letter from the DES for a high level Joint Advisory and Co-ordinating Board with representatives from the local authority, the University and the enlarged Polytechnic.

They supported the continued involvement and development of the University's validating role across the county, while recognising that responsibility for choosing the validating agency rested with the Polytechnic.

They both emphasised that the close co-operation which was sought must extend across the county and not be limited to the Brighton area.

West Sussex County Council would also wish to be involved with a sub-regional body for higher education, their Director of Education said.

The Vice-Chancellor pointed out to Council that co-operation should grow upwards from genuine academic encounters between staff working together and not be forced downwards from some high level committee.

But he restated that the University's desire to support and develop higher education within the county remained unchanged, despite the dissatisfaction felt within the University with the tone and manner of the Secretary of State's decision.

GUTHRIE BROWN AWARD

Dr. Brian Young, lecturer in Mechanical and Structural Engineering, has won the Guthrie Brown Award for 1974, presented by the Institution of Structural Engineers.

The award was for the best paper by an institution member, aged under 40, published in the Structural Engineer.

MR. R. M. BEECHEN

Mr. R.M. Beechey, chief executive of East Sussex County Council and a member of the University Council, has been elected honorary secretary of the Society of Local Authority Chief Executives.

EDITH SITWELL LETTERS

An important collection of 126 letters written by the poet Edith Sitwell to the sister of Russian émigré artist Pavel Tchelitchew has been acquired by the University of Sussex Library. Dame Edith's many letters to Tchelitchew himself are in Yale University Library under conditions which make them inaccessible until the year 2000.

Tchelitchew, who lived in Paris from the mid-1920's, was introduced to Edith Sitwell by Gertrude Stein; and the long, close, but stormy, relationship which developed was recalled by Dame Edith in "Taken care of; an autobiography" (1965).

Ninety-eight of the letters to Tchelitchew's sister, Choura, (Madame Zouassallo) are dated between 1930 and 1962, the great majority dating from the 1930's, a decade not strongly represented in the published "Selected Letters of Edith Sitwell" (1970); 16 are undated; there are also two telegrams.

The Library describes the gift as an event of some importance for scholars.

All the letters are in Dame Edith's own hand, and all are in French.

Compared with the published selection from her English letters, which the editors characterize as "copious, uninhibited and energetic", these present a much more limited range of subjects in a much less personal, less virtuoso style.

The literary critic may wish to assess how far the distinctive characteristics of these letters were determined by Dame Edith's knowledge of the interests of the recipient and how far by her lack of confidence in writing French.

The letters document, among other things, many meetings of Dame Edith with Choura, who "made the tragic, laughing, beautiful Anna Karenina a living human being for me", she wrote in her autobiography. They also confirm the ill-health of both Dame Edith and her friend.

The letters were donated anonymously to the University. Choura bequeathed the letters to the donor who died recently. He was anxious that they should be returned to Dame Edith's own country.

EAST SLOPE - OFFICIAL

The East Slope residences are to be called "East Slope residences. The "East Slope residences. Council approved this name for the Magazine and Murray residential development at its last meeting.
MUD SWEAT AND TEARS... FUN TOO

Mike Banks, Assistant Chairman of Community Services and Director of Sport, left the University on April 11 to become Director of Leisure Services at Stevenage. Before he went he told Jennifer Payne what his nine years at Sussex had been like.

In 1966 Mike Banks, then head of physical education at Haywards Heath Grammar School, applied to be a mature history student at the University of Sussex. Interviewed by Marie Jahoda, he discovered that he knew less about history than he thought, and his application to join the University was rejected.

His association with Sussex might have ended there, had the University not decided at that time to develop the provision of sport on the campus. A month after being rejected as a student, Mike Banks applied for the post of Sports Manager and got the job, funded half by the University and half by the Students' Union. When he next saw Marie Jahoda it was in the Senior Common Room.

When Mike arrived at the University in September 1966, his first office was in a terrapin alongside a muddy track close to the site of what is now the Sportcentre. His name was scrawled in chalk on the door and inside he found an absolutely bare office where the telephone wires had been cut. One of his first jobs was to equip the room with furniture appropriated from neighbouring offices.

Nine years ago there were no Sportcentre or squash courts - only playing fields (unusable). For the next two years Mike coordinated sports activity on the campus, working closely with the Sports Federation. He was a member of the Athletics committee and actively involved in plans for the Sportcentre complex. His aim in these early years was to provide a range of facilities which would be easily available to everyone. The opening of the Sportcentre helped him immensely in this task, he says.

In 1968 he made his first trip abroad with a University side, when the soccer team visited Amsterdam. He recalls that the team arrived on the Monday and did some training in preparation for a match on the Monday against the Free University of Amsterdam. Amsterdam won in a disputed result and were so embarrassed by their victory over their guests that they made especially great efforts to entertain them that evening, Mike says. It was 5.30 in the morning before he put the last member of the team to bed and later in the day they were three goals down in the first twenty minutes - with two goals in their own net - in their match at Leiden.

In the same year Mike became Director of Sport - a post paid for fully by the University. At the same time, the Sports Federation appointed their own officer. Over the next few years the pavilion, squash courts and floodlit area were built and developed. The grounds at the site of Thorus conference centre were also taken over.

In 1970 Mike was joined by Derek Breeze who became Assistant Director. They both took Open University courses at the same time, each getting a degree in two years. Mike's marks in his final examinations were particularly high, proving that even the Sussex admissions system can be wrong sometimes!

He feels that the next stage in the development of sport must be to look at standards. "We must ask ourselves if we are providing opportunities for people to play at the standards they want to." There was also the point that providing facilities for serious players might affect those available to other players. Mike vividly remembers when he was appointed Assistant Chairman of Community Services. In May 1972 he had taken an athletics team to Barcelona and had forgotten to clear the visit with the Chairman of Community Services, Dr. Brian Smith. As soon as he returned to the office he was told that Brian Smith wanted to see him immediately in his office. Fortunately for Mike it was to ask him to become Assistant Chairman.

Mike agreed to take the job, provided he could retain his interest in sport and it was agreed that he would spend 80 per cent of his time in Community Services, and devote the remaining 20 per cent to sport. He became especially involved with student accommodation.

He talks of his progress from "a guy rejected as a student but appointed as a half-employee of the University." He says he has worked hard and been totally involved with the work he has been doing. "It has got tougher to make that sort of progress", he feels.

Mike believes that his experience of committee work on housing problems, sport, theatre and car parking, acquired during his time here, will be of great value in his new job in leisure services, where a number of the activities will be similar to those covered by Community Services.

As an "amateur" he "says his piece" on committees. Officers of the University can do this, whereas those in his local government cannot, he says. The system in the University relies on people being involved. "One can get involved at different levels even outside one's own central interest areas!", Mike says.

"I wonder if people realise how free and open this place is", he reflects. "Particularly against the background of cut, I hope people don't lose sight of the total enterprise."

SUMMER GRADUATION CEREMONY

The ceremony will be on the morning of 15 July not the afternoon as stated in the notice circulated to faculty.

SPORT SERVICE

Following the resignation of Mike Banks as Director of Sport, Miss Jan Thole has become Acting Director, and Mr. Terry Wheeler, Assistant Director of Sport.

A Sport and Recreation Committee is to be established on similar lines to the Gardner Committee and will supersede the advisory group. The Committee will be responsible for formulating the role, plans and objectives of the Sport and Recreation service Programme and carry responsibility for the programme throughout the University. The Acting Director and Assistant Director of Sport will be responsible for the day to day running of the programme.
